

Fall 2005

In this issue...

The Street-Smart Naturalist
Thornton Creek Long Walk
What's New in 2005-06!

The Street-Smart Naturalist

Thursday September 29, 2005
7:30pm
North Seattle Community College,
Baxter Student Events Center
FREE

Join 'Seattle's Best Urban Nature Writer,' as dubbed by the Seattle Weekly, for a reading from his new book, The Street-Smart Naturalist. Books will be available for sale, and David will stay after to sign them and answer any questions.

Read reviews of his book.

Get Directions to NSCC

Thornton Creek Long Walk ~ The Natural History of an Urban Creek ~

Saturday November 5, 2005 -- 9:00am-3:00pm
FREE ~ Reservations Required

Join Homewaters staff and "Seattle's Best Urban Nature Writer," David Williams, for the eighth annual Thornton Creek Long Walk. Dubbed "Seattle's Best Urban Nature Hike" by the Seattle Weekly, the Long Walk explores the ecology, history, and current issues of Seattle's largest watershed, Thornton Creek. This fall the focus will be on the natural history of the watershed – the geology, ecology, and biology.

This year we've added a small service component for the hike (light litter clean-up), so we'll not only learn about the watershed, but improve its health along the way. This is also a great hands-on follow up to David William's reading of The Street-Smart Naturalist!

Reservations are required for this free half-day event. Contact Todd Burley at 206.526.0187 or tburley@sccd.ctc.edu.

What's New for 2005-06? A Lot!

New Director

Homewaters has a new Executive Director, Chris Page! Learn more about Chris at our website (www.homewatersproject.org) or sign up for our paper newsletter, The Source by sending your contact information to tburley@sccd.ctc.edu.

New Website

With help from volunteers on our Website Advisory Group, Homewaters now has a new website that better describes our programs. We'd love your feedback, so check it out at www.homewatersproject.org and email tburley@sccd.ctc.edu with your comments.

New Office

We have also moved to a new office space at North Seattle Community College. Our new space will allow us to utilize many more volunteers, so contact us if you would like to help with office or program support. And feel free to stop by and say "hi." We are in Room 1657 of the Technology Building on the southeast corner of NSCC.

You are subscribed to this list as a friend of Homewaters Project.
To unsubscribe from this list, email tburley@sccd.ctc.edu.

Todd Burley
Outreach Coordinator
Homewaters Project
North Seattle Community College
9600 College Way North
Seattle, WA 98103-3514
Phone: 206.526.0187
Fax: 206.527.3748
www.homewatersproject.org

Our mission is to create an engaged and informed citizenry by connecting people to nature and each other in the context of their home communities.